While the videos from the professor are great, new and fresh way of communicating with the class, many items seem to be missed or overlooked. Felt the same with the Whitepaper draft feedback, in fact, all members except the team leader caught one of the main points from the feedback. Possibly add as short bullet list to reflect the video. While I, as an IT professional with 34 years in the field, understand the importance of clear listening and taking notes during the video, many students do not. Thank you for the course layout and your willingness to make the Capstone course be held to a higher level that requires Graduate level work.

Instructor is really good with lots of video feedback. Thank you!

Awesome job from the professor. especially during COVID-19, he is very engaging and leveraging all tools at his disposal to lead us to success.

Honestly the video feedback is much appreciated as we are able to view visual cues as well as written feedback. Overall, it helps make the situation feel more realistic. So thanks for taking the time to do it! As for the pilot program it was a solid task, the ask felt more realistic to what you would hear in corporate America yet still hit all the check-boxes for academia. I think it was a good balance to help students with the transition from graduate school to work. Thanks for everything! Hope you have a good rest of the year and try to stay safe out there! – Joseph Cooper!

Considering the COVID-19 situation, instructor has done a great job of keeping up the pace. Great program.

I opted for the individual project for the final Capstone. Even though a majority of the class selected the group option, the professor was still prompt to provide feedback, meetings, and advice for my individual project.

Comments on the videos – Both of the "assignment" videos were effective in transmitting the information and in a more realistic manner than getting written instructions. When I get a project at work its in person or by zoom and not written out. Its important to be able to learn to distill a verbal instruction down to a written format.

Typically I am not a big fan of group projects in the school setting but I had a fantastic group and we were on the same page from day 1. Although I would like to have seen how my individual plan went, I was glad that I chose the group route given the short window this class has and the sudden changes that the world is facing.

Fantastic professor – engaging, responsive, supportive. Knowledgeable beyond expectation and the best faculty in the School of Computing by far. His knowledge of the discipline is evident and his care and concern for students progressing in the online learning environment is laudable.
